To Dakota Marie, our newest family member and a shining light in our lives, who has yet to learn the letters S A P, but whose life will be touched in many ways by information technology.

About the Author

Roger Hayen

Roger Hayen is the Towle Professor of Management Information Systems in the Department of Business Information Systems of the College of Business Administration at Central Michigan University. Since 1997, he has continued to work on integrating the SAP R/3 Enterprise Software into the college's curriculum. During this time, he has developed and taught courses that include an introduction to SAP R/3 software, ABAP programming, and SAP R/3 configuration and implementation. His current curriculum development efforts include integrating the SAP R/3 software into the Information Systems course and other courses required of all majors in the College of Business Administration. He has published several articles that describe various efforts in integrating SAP R/3 software in college and university curricula.
