An Appreciation

By Ava DuVernay

It was a Tuesday. March 15, 2016. I was in Alabama when it happened. When the world cracked down the middle and everything I knew was split wide open. That was the day my father ascended to another realm. He went home to another place. He became one with the spaces between the stars.

Less than a month after the passing of my father, Mr. Murray Maye, I began pre-production in Los Angeles for a film version of A Wrinkle in Time, which follows a girl who has lost her father. Her father's name is Mr. Murry.

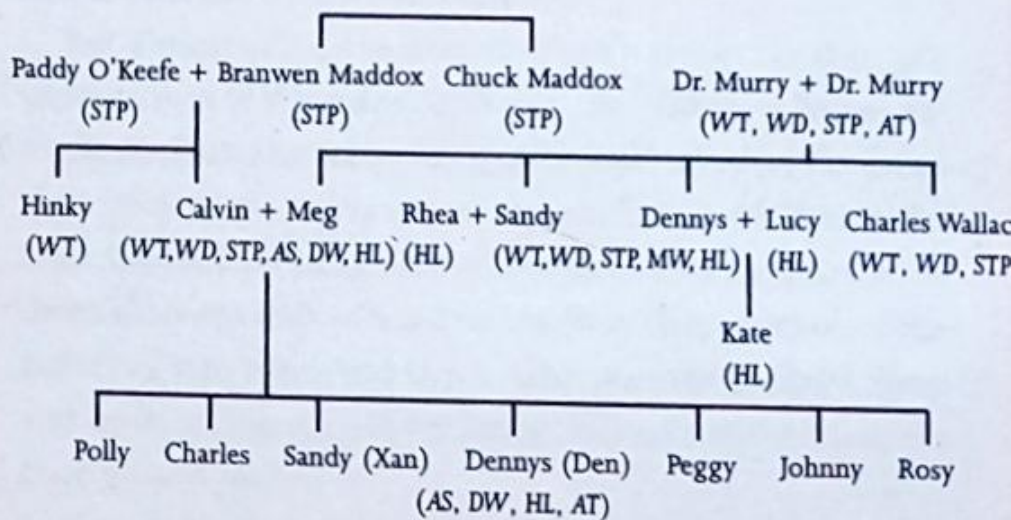

To say I began the process of bringing Madeleine L'Engle's beloved novel to life feeling much like her main character Meg Murry would be an understatement. I was grieving a sudden disappearance of my father, like Meg. I was angry with things beyond my control, like Meg. I was questioning my place in the grand scheme of things, like Meg. Delving into her journey helped me with my own in ways that healed my broken heart, in ways that make this tender story so dear to me.

But I'm far from the only person to have a story of deeply personal ties to Ms. L'Engle's work. Since being announced as the director of A Wrinkle in Time's film

IT WAS A DARK AND STORMY NIGHT....

In 1962, Madeleine L'Engle debuted her novel A Wrinkle in Time, which would go on to win the 1963 Newbery Medal. Bridging science and fantasy, darkness and light, fear and friendship, the story became a classic of children's literature and is beloved around the world. Now Disney is taking it to the silver screen! With an all-star cast that includes Oprah Winfrey, Reese Witherspoon, Mindy Kaling, Chris Pine, and newcomer Storm Reid, the major motion picture brings the world of Wrinkle to life for a new generation of fans.

"To read A Wrinkle in Time is to join with millions of people around the world, across generations, across decades, who have done just what you are about to do—open the door to an act of love. For that is what Ms. L'Engle has gifted us with. An act of love. A pathway through the darkness. A quest for belonging. A call to action. A step toward bravery. An embrace of self-discovery. An ode to those who are stronger than they know."

—AVA DuVERNAY,
DIRECTOR OF A WRINKLE IN TIME
