.. The New TOEIC

- As TOEIC stands for Test of English for International Communication, there is the need to assess proficiency by aligning questions with everyday language scenarios that happen in today's workplace. Tasks in the new TOEIC test are more authentic and there is a wider range of English accents compared to the previous version.

.. How is the new TOEIC different?

- The new Listening Section has four major changes:
 - a decrease in the number of photograph questions in Part 1 (from 20 to 10)
 - the use of both recorded and written questions in Part 3 (short conversations) and Part 4 (short talks). In Part 3, there are more conversational exchanges, from A-B-A to A-B-A-B.
 - an increase in the number of questions that follow each talk in Part 4 (3 questions instead of 2-4 in the earlier version)
 - the use of different English accents, as spoken in the U.S., Great Britain, Canada and Australia
- The new Reading Section has three major changes:
 - the elimination of Part 6 (error-recognition questions)
 - the addition of text-completion questions (Part 6)
 - the inclusion of reading sets of questions based on two inter-related passages (Part 7)

Listening Comprehension

- 10 picture-based questions (Q1-10)
 - There is a 25-second Direction for the whole Listening Section and a 70-second Direction for Part 1, which makes a total of 1 minute and 35 seconds before question 1 begins.
 - There is a 5-second pause between every two questions.
 - At the end of one page, you will hear the direction "Go on to the next page." The elapsing time between that point to the next question on a new page is 12 seconds. During this time, you should look ahead at the next 4 pictures on the new pages.
 - You should mark your answers directly on the answer sheet while you are listening to the questions.
- 30 questions (Q11-40)
 - There is a 1-minute Direction for Part 2.
 - There is a 5-second pause between every two questions.
 - Approximately 10-15 questions begin with WH- (what, when, who, why, how, which, where).
 - Since the question format remains much the same throughout Part 2, testtakers tend to lose concentration starting from questions 35-40. It is essential that you practice answering all these 30 questions in one session without breaking them in several chunks.
 - If you are not sure of any one question, just skip it and concentrate on the next one.
 - You should mark your answers directly on the answer sheet while you are listening to the questions.
- 30 questions based on 10 conversations (Q41-70)
 - There is a 30-second Direction for Part 3.
 - Each conversation is followed by 3 questions read to testtakers.
 - After a question is read, testtakers have 8 seconds to answer it before they hear the next one.
 - The conversations in Part 3 are longer than those in the old TOEIC as they have the format A-B-A-B instead of the shorter one A-B-A.

Structure of the test

- 30 questions based on 10 listening passages (Q71-100)
- There is a 28-second Direction for Part 4.
- Each listening passage is followed by 3 questions read to testtakers.
- After a question is read, testtakers have 8 seconds to answer it before they hear the next one.
- Each listening passage is about 100-120 words, and is read in 25-35 seconds.
- For Part 4, it is wiser for you to mark your answers on the question booklet and transfer them to the answer sheet at the end of the Listening Section.

Reading Comprehension

- 40 questions (Q101-140)
- Among these are: 11-13 questions on vocabulary; 12-13 questions on word forms and 14-16 questions on grammar.
- The length of each question is about 12-20 words.
- If you cannot answer a certain question in 30 seconds, mark it with an asterisk and proceed to the next one, then review it later when transferring your answers to the answer sheet.
- For Part 5, it is wiser for you to mark your answers on the question booklet and transfer them to the answer sheet about 5 minutes before the end of the Reading Section.

- 12 questions (Q141-152) in 4 reading passages (3 questions for each passage)
- Although the questions are embedded in the reading passages, they are similar in nature with those in Part 5 and should not create any special problems to testtakers once they are used to dealing with questions in the previous part.
- As with Part 5, you should mark your answers on the question booklet and transfer them to the answer sheet about 5 minutes before the end of the Reading Section.

- 48 questions (Single Passages: Q153-180; Double Passages: Q181-200)
- Usually there are 9 single passages and 4 double passages (i.e. 8 reading components).
- The reading passages may belong to a wide range of formats: ads, business email and letters, memos, articles, etc.
- You should try to answer all the questions of Parts 5 and 6 in 25 minutes, leaving at least 45 minutes to deal with Part 7.
- It is a good strategy to look ahead at the questions before starting to read the passages.
- As with Parts 5 and 6, you should mark your answers on the question booklet and transfer them to the answer sheet about 5 minutes before the end of the Reading Section.
