AI and the Rule of Law: The Necessary Evolution of a Concept
Paul Burgess. New York, NY: Bloomsbury Academic, 2024. 182 pp.
This book considers the ways in which the concept of the Rule of Law will need to evolve in order to ensure that the exercise of power by Artificial Intelligence (AI) does not become arbitrary and does not proceed unchecked. It argues that the Rule of Law has for centuries been the concept that protects against the arbitrary exercise of power. However, the exercise of power by AI unchecked by humans strains the concept's ability to provide this protection.

Digital Transformation of Traditional Cultural and Creative Industry

Jinyu Zhang and Feng Peng

This chapter aims to identify the main topics and issues scholars have advanced in tracing the digital shift and transformation in the traditional cultural and creative industries (CCI). Traditional CCIs are increasingly metamorphosing into digital forms, including publishing, television, journalism, music, and broadcasting. There are some relatively new concepts and forms of business, namely digital labor and play labor, platform economy and media convergence, digital publishing and self-publishing, user participation, and fandom. Four key transformational themes in traditional CCI are (1) the alteration in television and video culture, (2) the rise of the platform economy and participatory culture, (3) the transformation of publishing and the copyright discourse, and (4) the intersection of digital labor and gender equality. Based on these themes, three key takeaways are discussed: the ever-changing domain of technology and the resilience of industry, power dynamics and ownership discourse, and the intertwining of cultural identity with projected national image. Finally, the chapter suggests what the future prospects of the topic may be for industry stakeholders.

 Bibliography

Agriculture is among the earliest, most enduring, and most fundamental domains for technology. Although associated primarily with the cultivation of food crops such as wheat, maize, and rice, the term agriculture covers a wide variety of activities, including animal husbandry, dairy production, fiber production (such as cotton and flax), fruit and wine production, and aquaculture, as well as the harvesting, storage, processing, and distribution of food and fiber commodities. Agriculture frequently is understood to include all forms of food, fiber, and subsistence production, including forestry and fishing, especially with respect to the organization of scientific research institutes and government regulatory agencies. For example, government ministries such as the US Department of Agriculture (USDA); the United Kingdom's Department for Environment, Food, and Rural Affairs; and the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations have a responsibility for forestry and fisheries in their mandates. In all cases agriculture is both deeply involved with technology and science and subject to technical reflection.
