Acknowledgments

Thanks to the many clients I have had through the years. They have given me opportunities to see every combination of financial circumstances and improve their financial lives and lifestyles.

I also deeply appreciate the sharing among fellow financial planners, particularly other NAPFA members. We have educated each other as this profession has grown. Special thanks to Margery Wasserman, Bob Underwood, and Jim Schwartz.

Thank you to my contributing authors: Tyler V. Cook, Lawrence Funderburke, Stephen A. Lukan, Bhagwan Satiani, and Kimberly E. Wirtz.

A special thanks to Tula Batanchiev, my editor at John Wiley & Sons, as well as to the other professionals there, including Stacey Rivera. My thanks also to marketing consultant Sandra S. Nichols, who worked with me in the beginning to find creative ways to show consumers that they do indeed have choices in financial planning.
