About the Author

Janine Warner is an author, a speaker, and a web designer.

Since 1995, she's written and coauthored more than a dozen books, including every edition of Dreamweaver For Dummies, Web Sites Do-it-Yourself For Dummies, and Teach Yourself Visually Dreamweaver. She is the host of a growing collection of training videos for web design, Adobe Dreamweaver, and Cascading Style Sheets. She has also created videos for Kelby Training and Total Training. You can learn more about her books and videos, and find many free tutorials on web design, social media, and SEO on her website at www.DigitalFamily.com.

Janine is a popular speaker at conferences and events throughout the United States and abroad, and she's been a guest lecturer at more than 20 universities. An award-winning journalist, her articles and columns have appeared in a variety of publications, including The Miami Herald, Shape Magazine, and Layers magazine.

Janine has extensive Internet experience working on large and small websites. From 1994 to 1998, she ran Visiontec Communications, a web design business in Northern California, where she worked for a diverse group of clients including Levi Strauss & Co., AirTouch International, and many other small- and medium-sized businesses.

In 1998, she joined The Miami Herald as their Online Managing Editor. A year later, she was promoted to Director of New Media. She left that position to serve as Director of Latin American Operations for CNET Networks, an international technology media company.

Since 2001, Janine has run her own business as a writer, speaker, and consultant. She lives and works with her husband in Los Angeles. To learn more, visit www.JanineWarner.com or www.DigitalFamily.com.

Author's Acknowledgments

More than anything, I want to thank all the people who have read my books or watched my videos over the years. My readers and students are my greatest inspiration, and I sincerely enjoy it when you send me links to your websites. You'll find my e-mail address on my site at www.DigitalFamily.com.

Special thanks to David LaFontaine, my partner in all things digital and analog, whose patience and support keep me fed, loved, and (mostly) sane, even when I'm up against impossible deadlines.

For their contributions to this book, a heartfelt thanks to designer Beth Renniessen (http://www.ChameleonEngine.com); to photographer Jasper Johal (www.jasperphoto.com); to artist Amy Baur (www.inplainsightart.com); to underwater photographer Ken Riddick (www.cousinswest.com), and my father, Robin Warner (www.DexterTreeFarm.com).

Thanks to the entire editorial team on this book: Susan Pink for her helpful and proactive editing style; Jeff Noble for his attention to the technical details; and Bob Woerner for shepherding this book through the development and publishing process (again and again and again).

Over the years, I've thanked many people in my books — family, friends, teachers, and mentors — but I have been graced by so many wonderful people now that no publisher will give me enough pages to thank them all. So let me conclude by thanking everyone who has ever helped me with a website, a book, or any other aspect of the writing and research that go into these pages. Okay, now I think I can go to sleep tonight without fearing I've forgotten anyone. Thank you, thank you, thank you.
